The Strategy in 30 Seconds

What is a Cup-and-Handle?

A bullish continuation pattern from William O'Neil's "How to Make Money in Stocks":

- Rounded U-shaped consolidation (the cup)
- Small pullback near the right rim (the handle)
- Entry on close above the rim level

Inverse pattern detects bearish reversals.

The Edge — Volume Confirmation

Aggregate across the 18-coin universe

115 trades · Win rate 58.3% · Profit factor 2.08 · CAGR 9.56%

Tested across 79 coins · 25 non-responders excluded from production · Universe re-evaluated quarterly

vs Buy-and-Hold (BTC)

9.3× Better Return-to-Drawdown Ratio

Capture meaningful upside · Eliminate bear-market deep drawdowns.

Risk Discipline

- ✓ Per-trade risk hard-capped at 1.5%
- ✓ No leverage — notional $\leq 1.0 \times$ equity
- ✓ Maximum 6 concurrent positions across the 18-coin universe
- ✓ Pre-registered kill criteria · PF below 1.2 or DD over 15% triggers halt
- ✓ Quarterly universe re-tiering — adaptive to regime shifts
- ✓ ATR-based stops · Structural invalidation rules · Asymmetric time stops
- ✓ Same-bar stop+target collision = stop wins (conservative)

Institutional risk management built in from day one.
